LITURGICAL MANUSCRIPT

NUMBER VI.
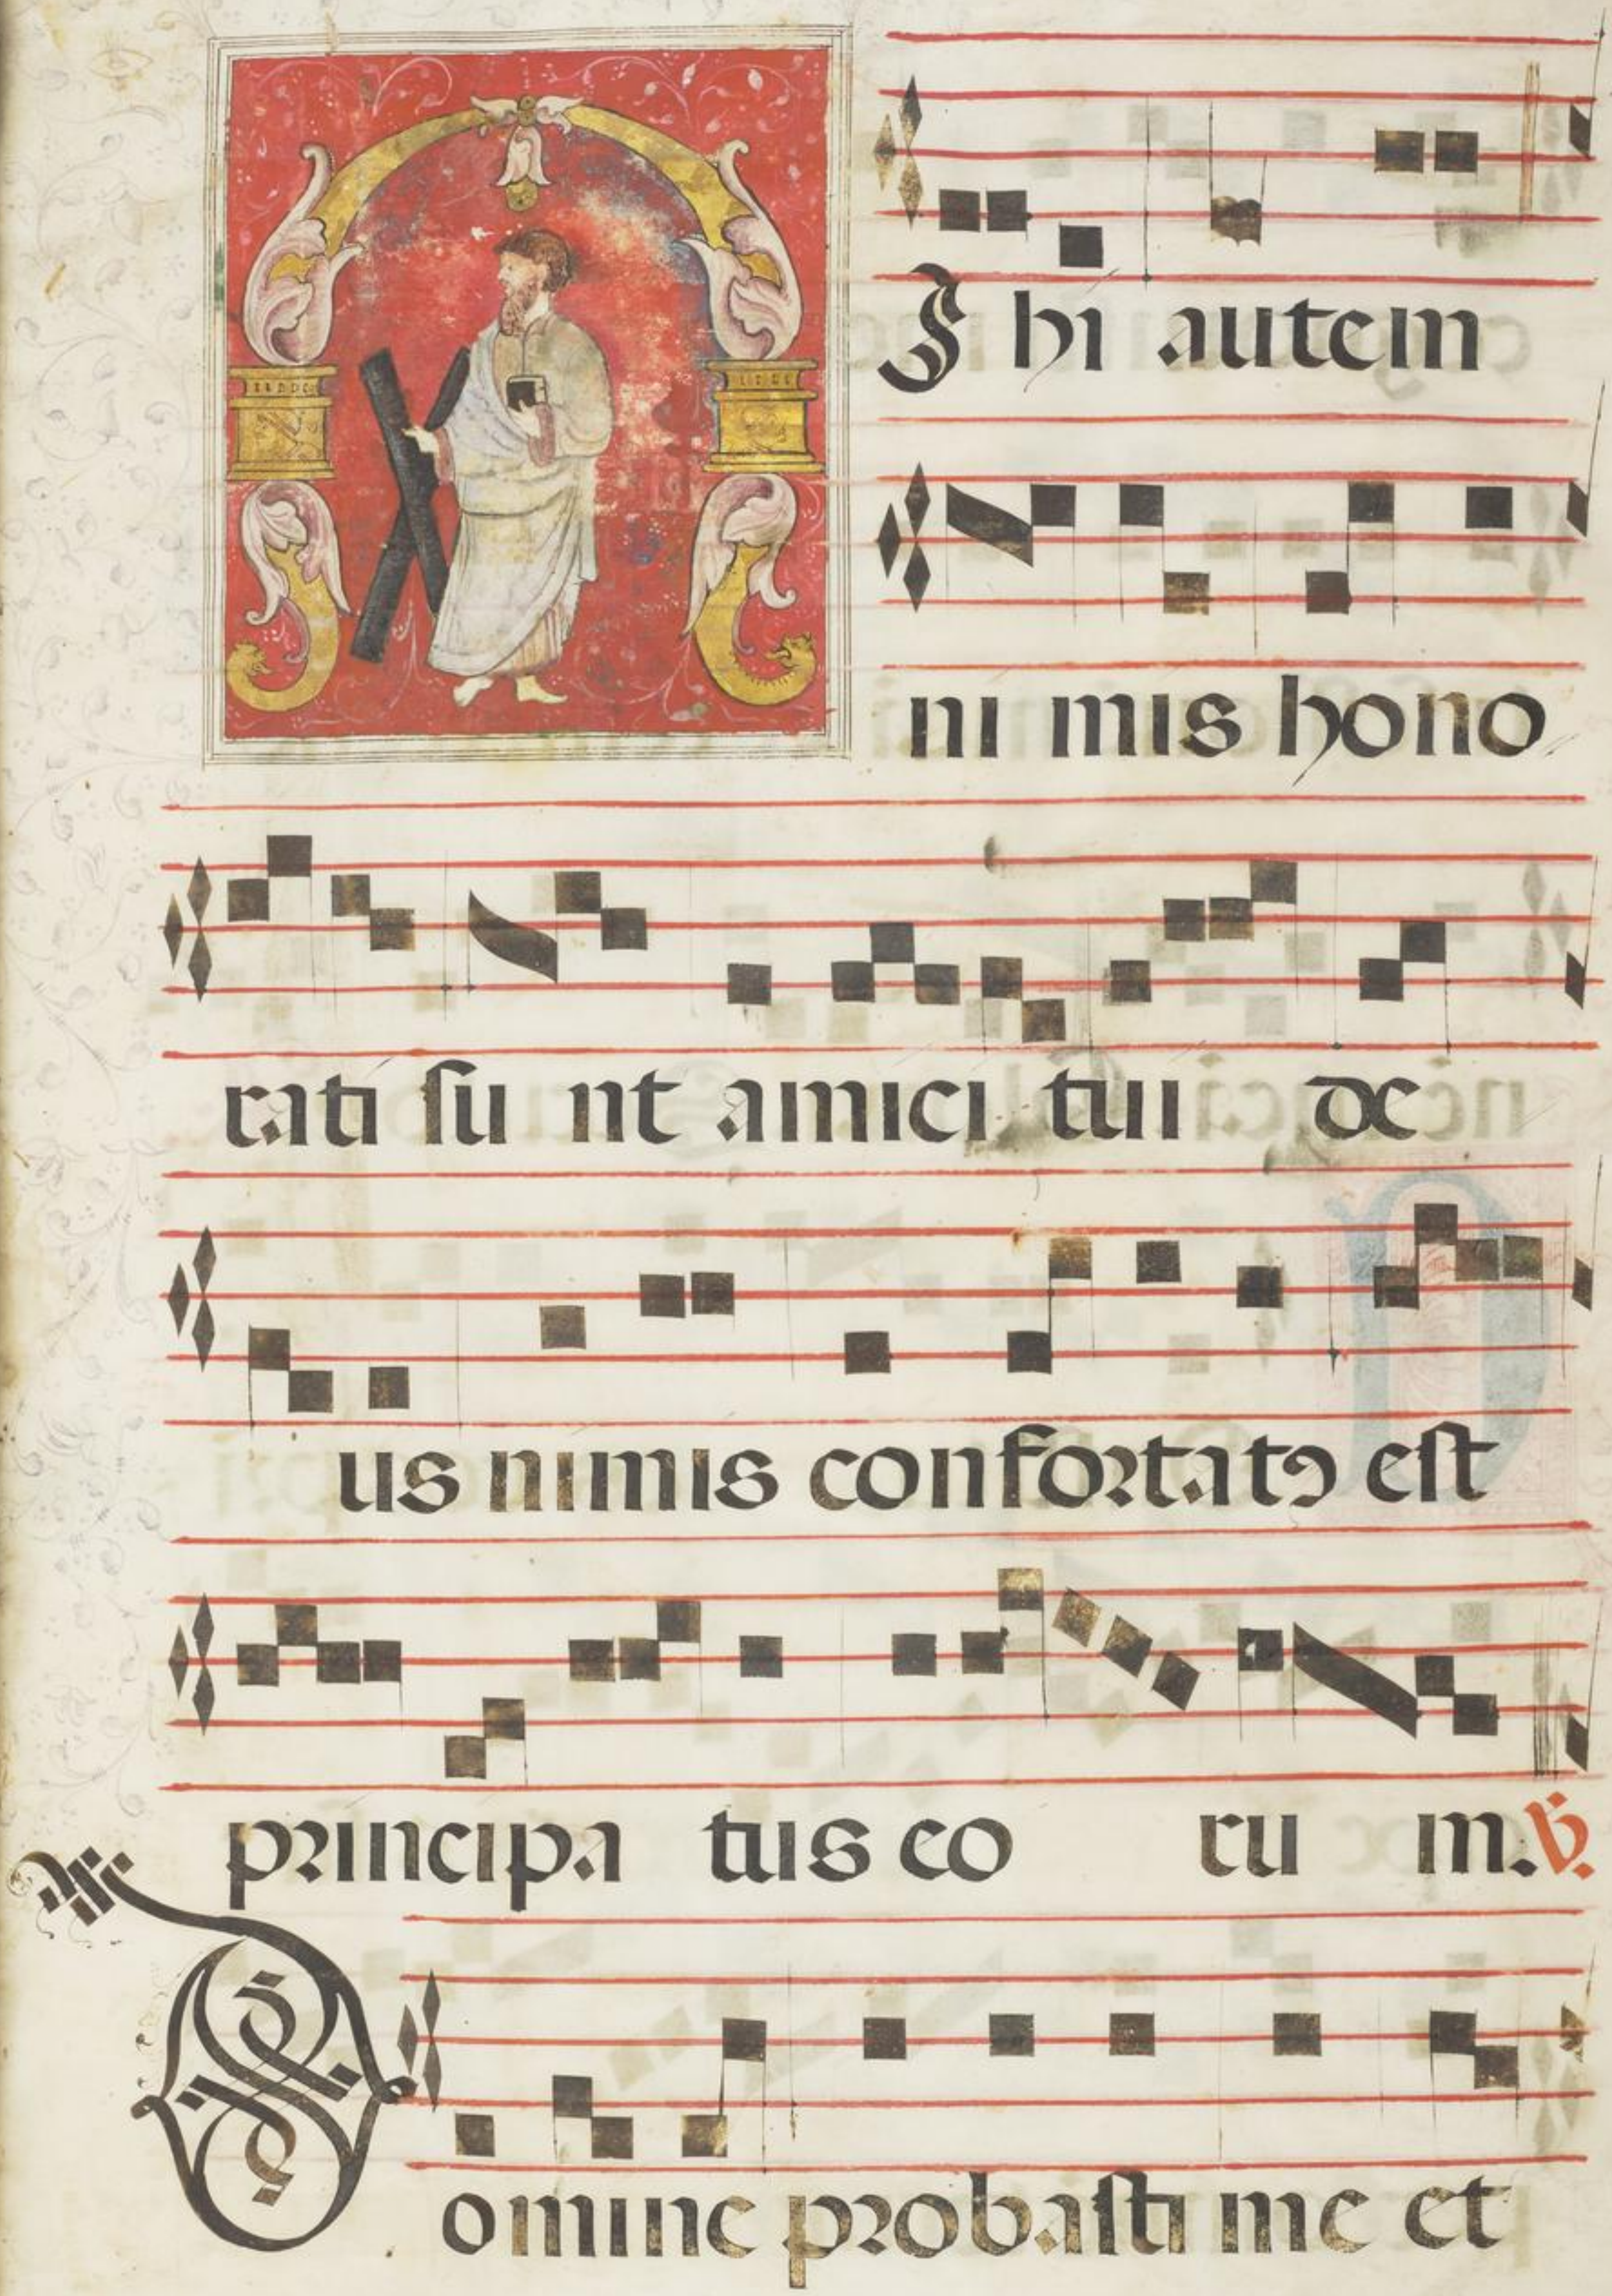

A Graduale, in a very good state of preservation. The brass ornaments are well preserved. Strictly, a Graduale is the anthem or hymn sung after the Epistle and before the Gospel. At an early time it ceased to be sung at the altar, and was sung at the lectors' ambo.

At the end of the volume is given an index, arranged in alphabetical order, showing where can be found the Introits, Graduals, Alleluias, Offertories and Communions contained in the volume. After these, on folio 186, is given the Asperges, with notation. The volume contains one hundred and ninety-one folios, of which folio 123 has been cut out, as also has the lower half of folio 185.
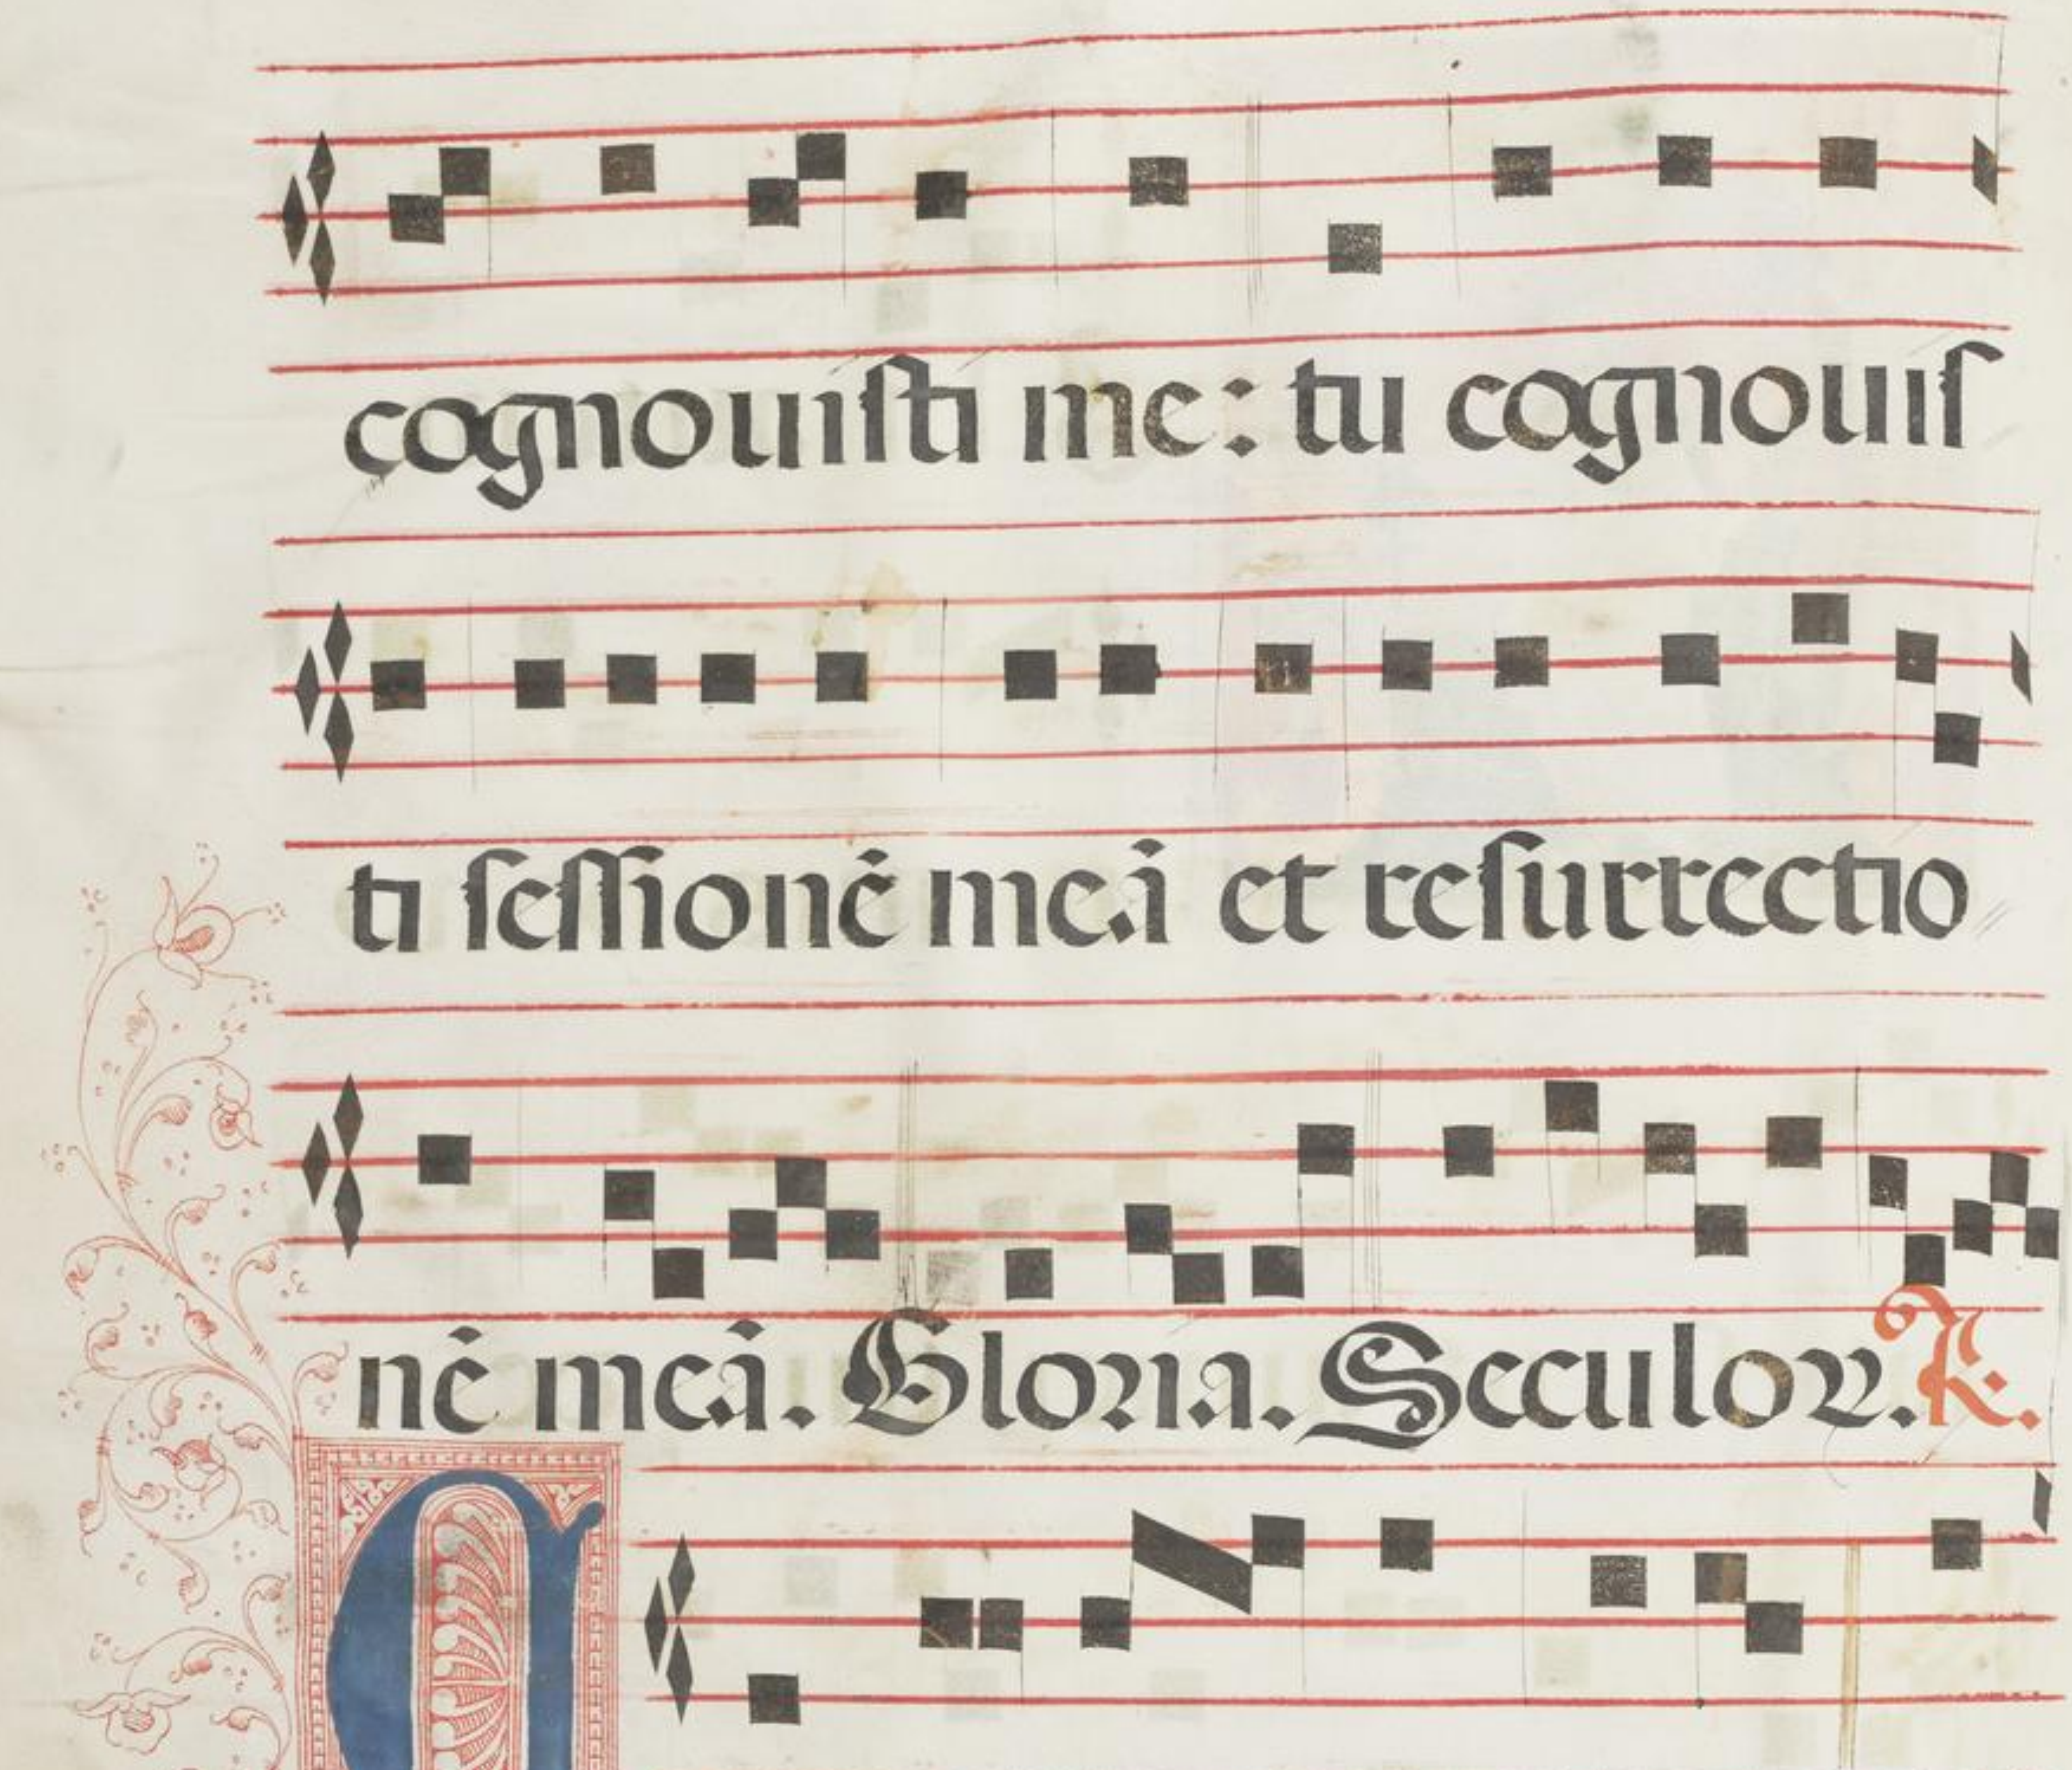

The writing may be compared with Number IV, being of about the same date.
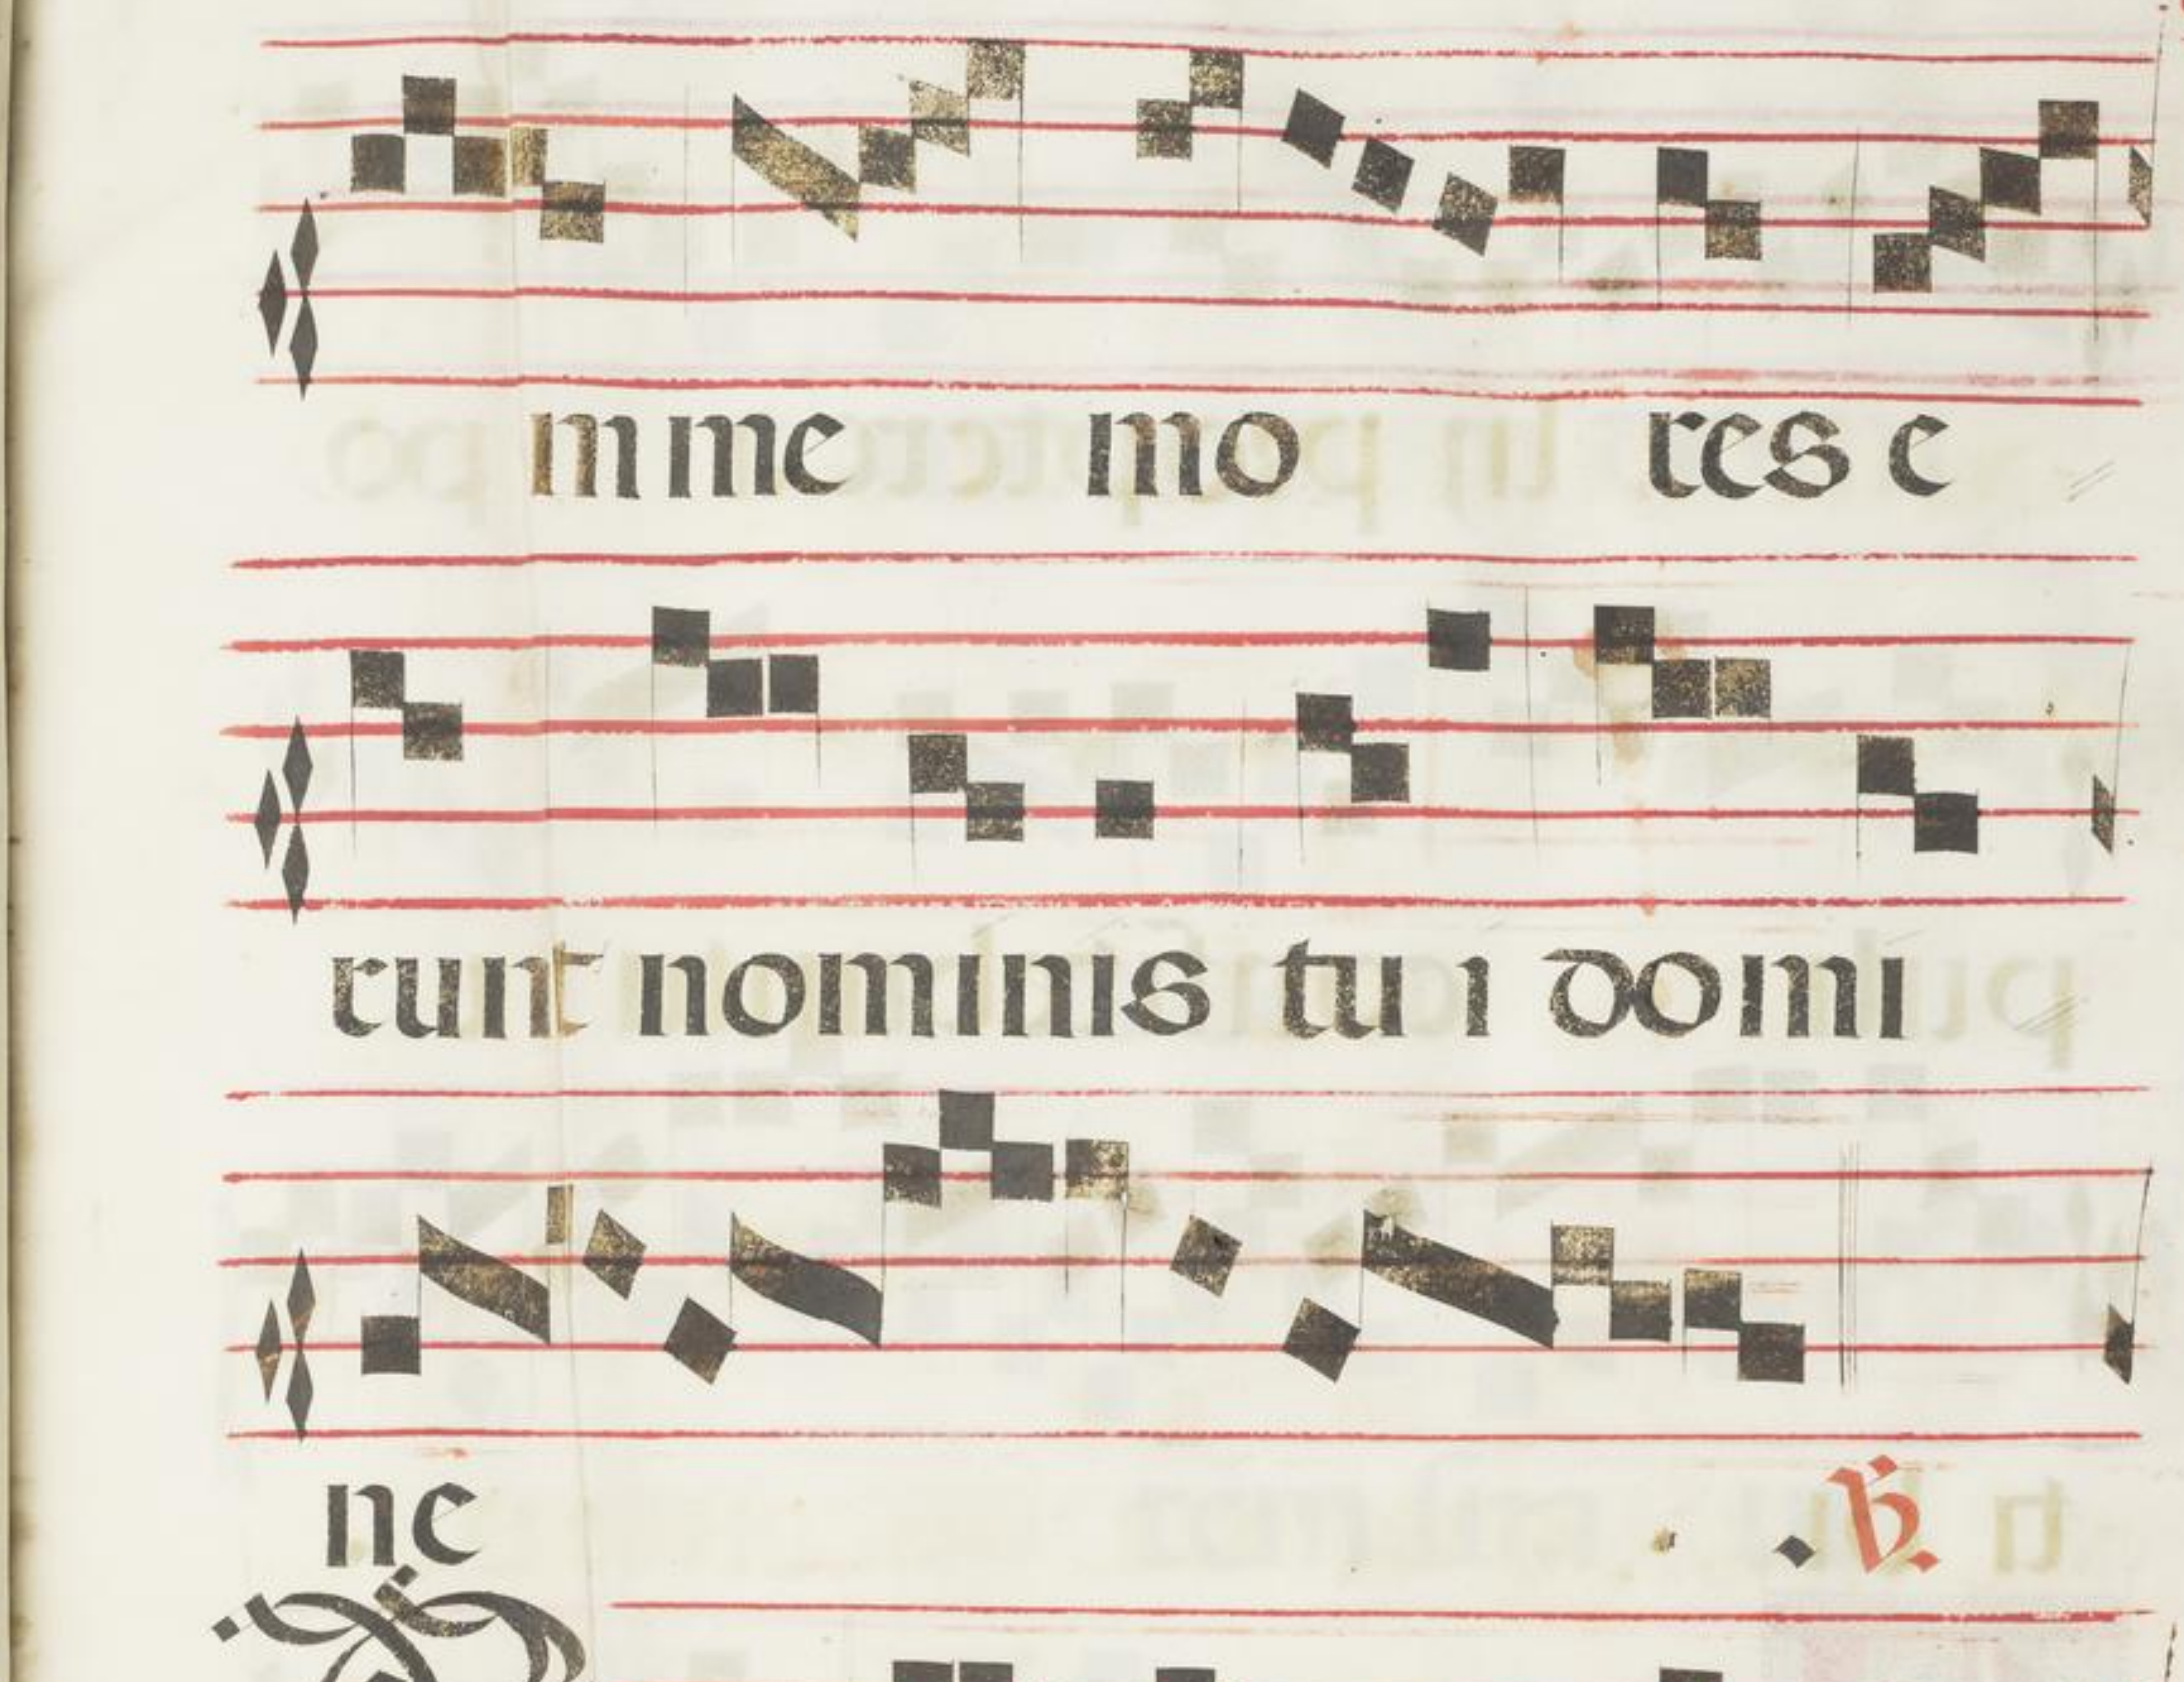

There are two hundred and seventy-six initial letters in colors, with two large ones worthy of careful examination. M(ihi) on folio 1, showing St. Andrew with his cross, and G(audeam) on folio 86.
